confidence that it will be found complete, and accurate, and adapted to the present wants of Officers of the law, in the minor courts of the State of Indiana.

The work is formed upon the plan of the "Oldo Treatise," by Jos. R. Swan, recently issued by the same publishers; with which admirable work it will favorably compare, in point of thoroughness and concisence of detail, and authority and precadence of practice.

All classes of Officers of Law in the State of Indians will find it a convenient guide in the performance of their various official duties: and to the profession gen-erally, it will prove convenient and useful. The Work embraces the Statutery Laws and the Decisions of the Courts or the State upon the following subjects:
